

STAND-UP PADDLE BOARD ITINERARY

YOU CHOOSE TO MEET AT THE ADRIFT OFFICE EITHER AT 7:45 AM OR 1:45 PM.

Experience paddle boarding in a new and fast growing way! Paddle, swim, and relax as you travel down a calm stretch of the river. Transportation, board rental, instruction, guide, snacks and water are included. Approximate time on the river/lake is 2 to 3 hours (time may vary based on water levels).

Experience one of the most scenic, relaxing and rewarding tours in Moab – stand-up paddleboarding on the Colorado River! Your journey begins at the Adrift Adventures, 378 North Main St., where you'll be fitted with a PFD (Personal Flotation Device) before an approx. 20 minute drive to a sandy beach along the river where we'll set off.

On the beach, your guide will fit you with a paddle and paddle board before providing some brief instruction both on the sand and in the water. With our paddle boards, most people generally get the hang of stand-up paddleboarding within just a few minutes. Once everyone is comfortable, we'll push off for a fantastic experience on the river.

You'll paddle past towering sandstone cliffs, catching the occasional glimpse of a great blue heron, a bighorn sheep, or a climber scaling the rock walls along the river's edge. Your guide will provide any needed assistance and instruction as well as insights about the fascinating geology that surrounds us. You'll have time to paddle, swim and just lie on your back in the sun as we drift down river.

Once we reach the takeout point along the river, we'll pack up all the paddleboards and supplies before heading back to our office.

We Provide: Stand-up paddleboard, paddle, Coast Guard approved PDF (Personal Flotation Device), water, snacks

You Need: Proper clothing – clothes & shoes that can get wet and are easy to move in, sun protection – sunscreen, sunglasses, camera (note that it may get wet so bring at your own risk)

Stand Up Paddleboarding Facts and History

- Stand up paddleboarding is also known as SUP, paddle surfing, “hoe he’ e nalu” in Hawaiian, or as we like to call it in Moab, “pure awesome” .
- Stand up paddleboarding is considered by many to be the fastest growing watersport in the country.
- Unlike surfing or windsurfing, stand up paddle boarding is generally very easy to learn, especially with the long, stable paddleboards supplied by Moab Adventure Center. Most pick it up within a few minutes.
- In the early 1960’ s the Waikiki natives, or "Beach boys," would paddle out standing on long surfboards to take pictures of tourists and help them catch waves.
- More recently, surf instructors began to use stand up paddle boarding as a way to better instruct students from a higher viewpoint.
- Paddleboarding really began to take off when Laird Hamilton, one of the most famous surfers on earth, declared that he preferred stand-up paddleboarding over any water sport.
- A trend of long-distance paddleboarding is becoming popular with many paddling along remote coastal areas and across open ocean between islands.
- In some cities, new launching docks have been opened exclusively for paddle boarders.

Physical Fitness Facts

- Stand up paddleboarding offers an excellent full-body workout for the abdomen, back, arms and legs. Top that off with a swim in the river and you’ ll earn the relaxing sun-bathe on your paddleboard and a well-deserved meal back in town.
- A new trend of paddleboard fitness classes and even paddleboard yoga is emerging as many find the combination of balancing on the board while exercising helps train the body equally for strength, balance and power.
- SUP races have sprung up everywhere from New Zealand to the Netherlands.
